Volunteers from the 4-H club of Caspian, the Caspian Boy scout troop 521, and the Caspian Downtown Development Authority built this memorial on Nov. 2015.

REMONDINI PARK

This park is in honor of LEO REMONDINI JR. who was a casualty of the Vietnam War. Died January 6, 1966. It is on the site on the grounds of the mining company, in old Caspian.

HISTORY OF CASPIAN

The development of the settlement of Caspian is closely related to the expansion of the mining industry on the west side of Iron County after the turn of the century, when the effects of the Panic of 1893, had subsided. For the most part, exploration was concentrated in the Iron River valley southeast of the settlements of Iron River and Stambaugh. In the first decade of the twentieth century, five mines opened in the area that was later incorporated as the Village of Caspian: the Baltic in 1900, the Caspian in 1903, the Youngs in 1904, the Fogarty in 1907, and the Berkshire in 1908.

A sixth mine, the Buck, opened in 1922. The development of each new mine brought more miners to the area, where no previous housing existed. Thus, the mining companies construction housing for their employees, beginning in 1904. The practice of building company housing continued in Caspian until 1929. A small business center soon developed to serve the mining locations; in 1908 this consisted of two grocery stores, two hotels, a livery stable, a saloon, a shoemakers shop, and a post office established that year. Two plats of 40 acre tracts near this business center were registered, one in 1908 and a second, by the Caspian Realty Company; however, by 1913, the entire settlement took the name of Caspian, after the most productive mine in the area. By 1917, the population of Caspian had reached 1,860. Agitation for the formation of a separate village government resulted in Caspian being incorporated as a village on April 8, 1918. A variety of municipal improvements were soon inaugurated, including the installation of a village water system in 1919, the construction of a village hall in 1923, and the completion of a village sewer system in 1926. City incorporation took place on April 8, 1950.

The ethnic background of Caspian has always been predominately Italian: the first settlers in the first settlers in the area were the Fedrizzis and Tessadri, and these were followed by a number of other Italian families. The strength of the Italian cultural heritage is evident by the proportionately large fraternal order of the Duca Degli Abruzzi, founded in 1909. However, a variety of other ethnic and cultural groups are represented in the community, including Croatians, Finns, Poles, and more than a dozen other nationalities. In spite of this broad ethnic make-up, Caspian is a cohesive settlement, whose citizens have developed a strong sense of community. This has been encouraged in part by the thriving shortly before 1920, and still is active today.

Caspian in its heyday, with six productive mines in operation, was bustling mining village, connected from 1914 to 1921 by streetcar lines with Iron River and Stambaugh to the northwest and Gaastra to the southeast. Caspian was incorporated as a city with a commission-manager of government in 1950. As with all of Iron County's west side settlements. Caspian declined after the closing of the mines. Today, it is a quiet community, closely linked to Iron River for employment, goods and services.

ORGANIZATIONS

CUB SCOUTS AND BOY SCOUTS

Leaders were Mark Stauber, and Gary Sabol, from 1996-2018. They meet at the St. Cecelia Catholic Church.

In Remembrance of Rosalie King

Rosalie King moved to Iron County, Michigan in 1967 with her husband Kenton and their four children.

In 1978 she was hired as Caspian City Administrator. She was honored to be the first woman city manager in the Upper Peninsula, serving in this position for 21 years. Her accomplishments included implementation of over 9 million dollars' worth of projects which included a main water line installation, developing roads through the industrial park, building a hockey rink, ski chalet, fire hall and a professional building.

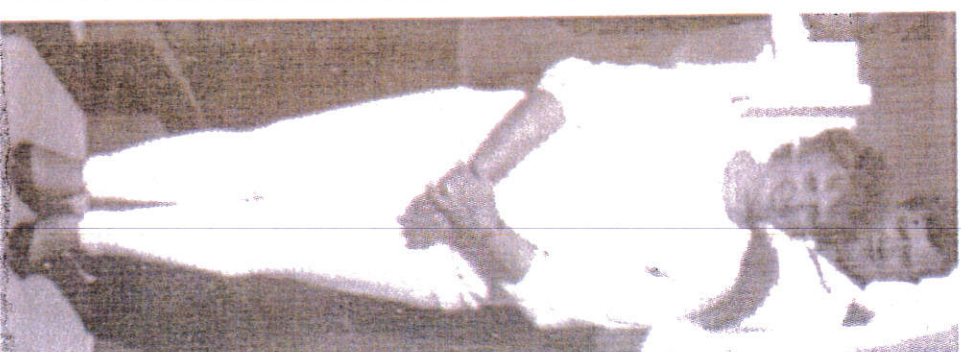

After retiring from the City of Caspian, Rosalie worked for the City of Iron River assisting in the transition of consolidating the City with Stambaugh and Mineral Hill.

Rosalie was elected to the Iron County Board of Commissioners and served from 2003 until 2012. During her tenure the County completed a major courthouse renovation and construction of its South Courthouse Annex. She served on many committees. While a Commissioner, she sat on the Iron County Community Hospital Board and was part of a committee to establish a kinship program to help the youth of Iron County.

Rosalie represented the County on the Boards of the Michigan Association of Counties (MACI) and the Michigan Municipal Risk Management Authority (MMRMA) which contributed to this memorial.

Rosalie was a member of Kiwanis, the Saint Cecilia Choir and was a part of the Carrie Jacob Bond Singers which has performed at many events to raise money for the Iron County Museum.

Rosalie will long be remembered as a pioneer in the contributions of women to public administration and an asset of the Iron County Community.

IRON COUNTY HISTORICAL MUSEUM

The first meeting of the Society was held at the Caspian City Hall in 1962. Clare Housasell served as temporary chairman. The 1st. officers were Harold Bernhardt, President- John Johnson, Vice President and Leila Puffer, secretary.

The museum was first opened in 1968 to showcase the newly acquired Mongial Miniatures, acclaimed to be the largest set of miniatures in the world. William Mongial of Iron Mt., donated the exhibit which housed 2,000 pieces.

There are 19 buildings on the grounds, including the Gastra St. Marys church, Carrie Jacob Bond House, the Baumgartner district school house, Mr. Giovanelli house, the Trolley car, Paul's bottling works.

The mission is to preserve the buildings and gathering the artifacts. A full calendar of programs has been developed each year. Working with the many volunteers, the museum continues to grow.

ST. VINCENTS DE PAUL

The first St. Vincent De Paul conference of Iron Mountain was formed here at St. Cecilia Parish at the suggestion and under the supervision of Father Sartorelli in February 1983. The formation committee members were Monica Fiorazo, Edward Battye, Violet Polich, and Joseph Polich. At the time our conference was officially aggregated in February 1993 into the National Council of the Society of St. Vincent De Paul, our membership consisted of Monica Fiorazo, President, Dorothy Aregoni, Vice President, Della La Violette, Secretary, Gerald Thunander, Treasurer, Richard Holm, Jeanne Holm, Kathleen Blood, Raymond LaCosse, Lucille LaCosse, Donna Paul and Anthony Fittanti.

St. Cecelia Church

The rectory was built first, starting on July 15, 1951, and occupied by the parish priest April 29, 1952. The church was built by Caspian Construction Company on June 9, 1951 and completed by July 17, 1955.

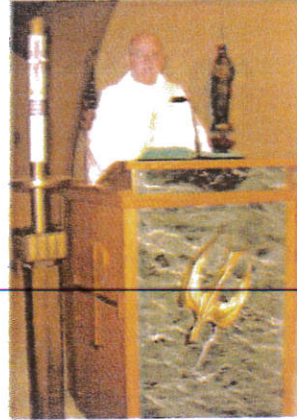

Father Fadale was the priest from 1968-1992. Father Bracket came, Father Chester Francek replaced him and then Father Hartman. Father Sartorelli came. There was the men's club, St. Anne's Society. Julie McDonald was the choir director and organist. The church held CCD classes for the students. The men put on fall harvest dinner in the fall, and Mother's Day breakfast. The women put on bake sales, ethnic food festival, Father's Day breakfast and served lunches at funerals. Tony Fittanti was custodian and assisted with masses for many years. Our parish is now served by Father Gregory, who serves both Caspian and Iron River, He just celebrated his 25 years of the Priesthood.
